

SOME MESSAGES CANNOT WAIT

When a caller dials the existing main line number, the answering service answers the call, triages the request, and captures issue details and urgency. For urgent matters, the answering service initiates a live call through OnPage's Dedicated Line. OnPage automatically routes the call to the appropriate on-call staff based on schedules and escalation rules. If the primary on-call staff does not acknowledge the call, it escalates to the next on-call responder. If no one responds within the escalation window, the caller is prompted to leave a voicemail and callback number, which OnPage converts into a high-priority alert/ "page" and escalates again with loud, persistent notifications until someone acknowledges. All actions are logged, creating a complete audit trail and failover report.
